Out of the Shakeup, the New 'Team'

Profiles of some of the key figures in yesterday's shuffle in the Ford administration:

DONALD RUMSFELD was born in Chicago on July 9, 1932, and was educated at Princeton . . . elected to Congress from Illinois in 1962 at age 29 . . . took over the Office of Economic Opportunity for Richard Nixon in 1969 . . . served as presidential counselor and director of the Cost of Living Council during Phase II of price control . . . left Washington as the Watergate scandal was unfolding to serve as ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization . . . served in the "kitchen cabinet" that engineered the transition from the Nixon to the Ford administration . . . for the past year, as staff co-ordinator, has controlled the Ford White House as systematically as H.R. Haldeman ran the Nixon staff.

LT. GEN. BRENT SCOWCROFT was born March 19, 1925, in Ogden, Utah . . . a Mormon, he neither smokes nor drinks . . . devoted his Air Force career to theory and planning rather than actual combat . . . graduated from West Point and received master's and doctoral degrees in international relations from Columbia University . . . went to the White House in 1972 as Richard Nixon's on's military assistant . . . within a year, was promoted from colonel to brigadier general and was assigned as deputy assistant to the President for national security affairs under Henry Kissinger, whom he replaces. "He's extremely loyal to Henry," a National Security Council staff member said. "They work so well together . . . They are simpatico."

GEORGE BUSH, the son of a former senator from Connecticut, was born June 12, 1924, in Milton, Mass., into a family prominent in New York financial circles . . . enlisted in the Navy on his 18th birthday and served as an aviator during World War II . . . graduated from Yale in 1948 and founded an oil-drilling firm in Texas that made him a millionaire . . . served one term as a Texas congressman but was twice defeated for the Senate . . . was appointed ambassador to the United Nations in 1970 and GOP national chairman in 1973 . . . went to Peking in 1974 to head the U.S. liaison office . . . his nomination to the CIA is viewed by friends as an indication that Ford may be considering him for the vice presidency.

ELLIOT RICHARDSON was born July 20, 1920, into a prominent Boston family and attended

Harvard, where he received bachelor's and law degrees . . . served as secretary of health, education and welfare, defense secretary and attorney general . . . perhaps known best for resigning from the Justice Department during the "Saturday Night Massacre" in October, 1973, after refusing to obey Richard Nixon's order to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox . . . was named U.S. ambassador to Great Britain in February . . . may run against Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), who is up for reelection next year.

RICHARD CHENEY, 34, a native of Lincoln, Neb., earned bachelor's and masters' degrees at the University of Wyoming . . . began his political career as a staff assistant to former Gov. Warren Knowles of Wisconsin and former Rep. William Steiger (R-Wis.) . . . served as Donald Rumsfeld's assistant in a series of posts that led both to the White House staff, one reason he is called "Rumsfeld's shadow" by some on Capitol Hill . . . has been consulted often by White House aides and reporters because he reflected Rumsfeld's views dependably and was considerably more accessible . . . associates describe him as a good listener who can disagree without rancor.
